This nomination he considered equal throwing the matter in the teath of the Senate, although the Senate had no shown its teeth on the subject. He the detailed his enerts to have the nomination of Mr. Barnes rejected. He to also of his increatual enerts to secure the senate when the senate senates have senated to the senate senates the secure of his charges against also of his ineffectual efforts to secure an investigation of his charges against Barnes. In order that he might not be accused of unfairness, Mr. Tilliman had read Mr. Barnes's defense of his conduct in the Morris affair. He also had read the statements of Elmer E. Paine, who was, he said, one of the six newspaper men at the Executive Office when the Morris incident occurred. He commented at some length on Mr. Paine's statement, saying he was the only one of the six who had ever had anything to say about the matter outside of their own papers or in private conversation. own papers or in private conversation. This he spoke of as "remarkable," and then quoted extracts from Mr. Paine's statement.

President Indifferent.

In contrast to that statement he pre-ented what he declared to be the actual facts in the case. These were in in a statement from James H. other newspaper man who had witness-the occurrence. In Mr. Paino's state-ent it was represented that Mrs. Morris is treated as considerately as possible said the president had been very at the facts in the case, and he could not understand why Paine had been singled out from among the newspaper men. He also discussed the difference of testimony as to whether Mrs. Morris had been dragged, and as going to "prove beyond all possibility of dispute," he said Mrs. Morris had furnished him with the black silk skirt she were on the occasion. This was torn in many places, while there was a round hole at one of the knees showing that she unquestionably had been dragged. Not only was there a hole in the skirt, but there were also holes in the underclothing and in the hosiery—proof sufficient to prove any man, "an ardent list" who spoke to the contrary, said the Senator.

He quoted one witness as expressing

Drift to Imperialism.

Speaking of the police at the White buse, Mr. Tillman said there is such a justify the use of the military for that purpose. If the country wanted to go to the devil along the lines of imperialism he could stand it. As indicative of this inclination, he added:

"A young lady has married and gono cross the water, whence she is heralded s 'Princess Alice.' I don't hold the sident responsible for that, for President responsible for that, to the would be unfair to hold him responsible for the course of a lot of fools who write headlines, which must be obnoxious to In closing, Mr. Tillman declared that Mrs. Morris had been treated "worse than a dog," and that the President had endorsed this treatment by appointing the man responsible for it to the posi-tion of postmaster of Washington, where

Session of the Senate.

Session of the Senate.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Senate consumed the greater part of the day discussing the public building bill, the time being occupied in the main by efforts on the part of individual Senators to secure increases of the amounts allotted for public buildings in cities and towns of their respective States.

Senator Tillman found opportunity to make his long-deferred speech on the ejection in March last of Mrs. Ming. Morris from the Whita-House by direction of Assistant Secretary Barnes. He relievated his charge that Mrs. Morris had been outrageously treated, and said that the President had endorsed the action by appointing Mr. Barnes postmaster of Washington.

The last of the great appropriation bills—the general deficiency—was reported during the day, and a night session was held for its consideration.

After passing the general deficiency bill and the omnibus public building bill, the Senate at 10:30 adjourned until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

the women of this city would have to come into contact with him.

"I have felt constrained," he said, "to do what I have done, and if anybody doesn't like it, let him lump it."

There was loud applause in the galleries when Mr. Tiliman concluded, but owing to an objection by Senator Kean, the Senate refused to vote on his resolution. octopus hanging over them nor by the vision of brands upon their brows. "And I desire to say for the conferees who have signed this report," he "concluded, "that they have manifested throughout the whole deliberation a degree of honesty and fidelity, which is certainly equal to that which a certain gentleman who has not signed the report admits he rosssasses.

Mr. Richardson, of Alabama, the House minority conferee on the bill, opened the discussion with a review of the conference agreement to show that the measure, as he said, was Democratic in its resential features and had been made more so in conference. He touched on the controversy over the pipe line amendment and said he had given the subject honest study and believed the conclusion reached to be correct.

Roads Slipped Up.

The point was made by Mr. Bartlett, of Georgia, that the railroads had evidently "slipped up" on one point in the court review provision. As it now read, he said, it nowhere provided for an appeal from the refusal of the Circuit Court of Appeals to grant an injunction. It was only when an injunction was granted that a proced would like to the Su-Pays Respects to Tillman.
Once more the House has agreed to the railroad rate conference report. But one negative voice was raised against the report in the viva voce vote takan.
Mr. Sherman, of New York after saying the report was sound and sensible, paid his compliments to Senator Tillman. The conferees, he said, had not been scared by the lurid pictures of the ed that an appeal would lie to the Sued that an appeal would lie to the Su-preme Court.

In the report as adopted by the House, the McLaurin commodity amendment is made to apply to "railroad companies," the word "companies" having been added to the previous agreement, which changed the application from "common carriers" to "railroads," in order to exempt pipe lines.

Pass Provision,

The pass provision is redrafted along the lines of the amendment as passed by the Senate. It prohibits broadly and generally the issuance of any free trans-portation for interstate passage, and then provides an excepted class, which is as follows:

"No common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall, after Jan-uary 1, 1907, directly or indirectly issue or give any interstate free transuary 1, 1907, directly or indirectly issue or give any interstate free transportation for passengers, except to its employes and their families, its officers, agents, surgeons, physicians and attorneys at law; to ministers of religion, traveling, secretaries of railroad men's Christian Associations; inmates of hospitals and charitable and eleemosynary matritube, and persons exclusively engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; to indigent, destitute and homeless persons, and to such persons when transported by charitable societies or hospitals, and the necessary agents employed in such transportation; to inmates of the material homes or State homes for disabled volunteer, soldiers, and of soldiers' and sailors' homes; including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge, and boards of managers of such homes; to necessary caretakers of live stock, poultry and fruit to employes on sleeping cars, express case and to linemen of telegraph and telephone companies; to railway mail service employes, postoffice inspectors, customs inspectors and immitgrati inspectors; to newsboys on trains, baggage agents, witnesses attending any legal investigation in which the common

Benator Tillman to-night presented in the Benate the conference report on the railroad rate bill, and gave notice that he would sak its consideration to-morrow. He made a brief statement of the effect of the conference, and expressing the opinion that the bill would soon become a law, offered a joint resolution providing that it should not become a law until sixty days after its approval. The resolution went over to await action on the conference report.

This afternoon Senator Hale moved to have the report temporarily withdrawn from the Senate, saying he took this action at the request of the chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations. The request was granted.

The report will come back to the House to-morrow and will be adopted without serious objection.

Sonators Daniel and Martin to-day thanked President Roosevelt for the interest he had manifested in the Jamestown Exposition and in obtaining an appropriation by Congress for the exposition.

The Senators extended an invitation to the President to attend the ceromonios incident to the Universident of The Senators with The Sen
